1 CULTURAL CONSERVES, LEADERSHIP AND CHANGE: UTILIZING THE CANON OF CREATIVITY

Daniela Simmons, Ph.D., TEP, ASGPP
President, Tele'Drama International Founder & CEO

The Canon of Creativity describes the relationship between warming-up, spontaneity and creativity, leading to the new Cultural Conserves. J.L.Moreno talks about 'danger' and 'regress' when remaining within the cultural conserves without a future development: 'The twin factors of spontaneity and creativity no longer exist as an actuality in the universe" (J.L.Moreno, 1964b, p.159) Continuing the development by taking on a new challenge and pursuing an innovative process, is when the leadership roles develop, and a personal and social change would occur. The full-day workshop will explore in depth those processes and everyone's potential for leadership.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Apply Moreno's philosophical concept of the Canon of Creativity for personal and social development and change.
2. Recognize how challenging old cultural conserves contribute to the development of leadership roles.

This is a 2024 Award Recipient's Workshop

2 SOCIOMETRICS & RELATIONSHIP
TRAUMA REPAIR (RTR)

David Moran, LCSW, CADC-D, TEP, NAADAC; Karen Levin Moser, LCSW, PAT

Dr. Tian Dayton designed Sociometrics and Relational Trauma Repair. RTR utilizes the Human Social Engagement System - the healthy aspects of codependency, nurturing and connection. The tools offered will allow you the ability to create the safety, connection, and camaraderie necessary to provide the training to integrate RTR into your practice. RTR will provide the atmosphere to heal from trauma, co-create supports, and engage in intimate relationships. You will learn how to bring these skills to your clients and client groups to really help them heal from trauma and find more positive engagement in relationships.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Demonstrate the use of "Floor Checks" to enhance self-diagnosis of feelings states and traits .
2. Demonstrate how to utilize Experiential Letter Writing as a skill for group and individual work.

9:00 AM - 1:00 PM

HALF DAY - MORNING

3 MIRROR, MIRROR ON THE WALL

Paul Lesnik, LCSW, TEP, CSCSW, Private practice; Lin Considine, LMHC, TEP

An individual's sense of self is primarily formed through their perception of how others view them. The Mirroring Technique allows a client to see themselves as others do. In our lives, this process either reflects an accurate, compassionate mirror, or becomes complicated when the mirror provided creates a distortion in our self-perception. Learn how to distinguish between accurate and distorted mirroring and how to repair our "cracked" mirrors through working in action with those responsible for their distortions.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Distinguish the accurate, compassionate and inaccurate distorted mirroring.
2. Recognize self-perceptions through exploration in action to repair distorted mirrors.

4 UNFINISHED CONVERSATIONS: OPPORTUNITIES FOR SUPPORTED CLOSURE DIALOGUE

Miriam Zachariah, TEP, Ontario College of Teachers; Ashfique Rizwan, MPH, MSc, State University of New York at Buffalo

We will explore unfinished conversations with others that we have not had the opportunity to complete with the support of our own strengths. Through sociometric exploration we will create a supportive group container. Participants will learn how to enact inner strengths through our observing egos, role reversal through enactment to complete unfinished encounters in our lives.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Differentiate and apply psychodramatic tools of Role Reversal, Double, Mirror and Soliloquy.
2. Identify a personal strength and use it as a support to complete unfinished encounters.

This is a 2024 Award Recipient's Workshop

5 STEP IN THE SHOES OF THE TEENAGER USING SOCIODRAMA!

Lauren Shpall-Brown, MA, MEd, CP, PAT

Sociodrama enables young people to examine human relationships through group action methods, creativity and spontaneity. Through the co-creation of a Sociodrama, participants in this workshop will explore personal, social and political issues that matter to our teenagers today.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Examine the personal, social and political issues our young people care about.
2. Apply at least two sociodramatic techniques in their professional work - Role Reversals, Doubling, Aside...

6 SOCIOMETRY: EARLY RESEARCH IN POSITIVE PSYCHOLOGY AND THE FIRST SOCIAL NETWORKING

Dr. Nancy Kirsner, Ph.D., TEP, MFT, Phoebe Atkinson, LCSW-R, TEP, PCC

In a recent article in the Journal of Psychodrama, Sociometry and Group Psychotherapy entitled Beautiful Thinking in Action: Positive Psychology, Psychodrama and Positive Psychotherapy (Volume 66, Issue 1) Dr. Dan Tomasulo laid out the historical roots of both movements and how they had been woven together for many years (Tomasulo, 2019). In our workshop we continue this discussion as we explore key concepts from the field of positive psychology along with the science and practice of sociometry. Positive Psychology is the study of the conditions that contribute to flourishing. The field offers evidenced based interventions (PPI's) which are strategies to increase well being. Psychodramatists and Sociometrists have experiential skills that can be deployed to concretize and maximize these evidence based tools. As practitioners, we are uniquely positioned with methodology that empowers thru embodied learning. We will conduct action explorations and discover the positive impact that is possible when a sociometric lens is combined with evidence-based interventions.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

7 WHY WE DO WHAT WE DO -- AN INTRODUCTION TO PSYCHODRAMA

Stephen Kopp, MS, TEP

Are you new to psychodrama? Curious about action methods or attending this initial conference with a colleague? This workshop is designed to give you an understanding and working vocabulary in fundamental principles of psychodrama. From A (action methods) to Z (Zerka Moreno) this experiential workshop will journey from warming up through sharing. Together, we will experience several techniques to give you a foundation and support you in getting the most from the remainder of your conference.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Recognize common psychodrama terms and techniques.
2. Describe the stages of an effective psychodrama.

8 THE BODY REMEMBERS WHAT THE MIND FORGETS: PRISONS OR SACRED HOMES

Louise Lipman, LCSW-R, CGP, TEP,
Psychodrama and Creative Arts

Therapy, NYC, Trial Lawyers College

Our bodies can be either prisons of trapped energy or they can be sacred homes where we experience connections. Our history and life choices impact the fluidity of the energy flow within our bodies. To restore physical, emotional and spiritual well-being we have to work through the blockages that our bodies remember but our minds forget. Weaving together various forms of creative arts therapies such as psychodrama, guided imagery, music and art we will explore this flow. We'll identify the stuck places - using psychodrama to shine a light on the healing process - releasing blocked energy in a safe and supportive environment while restoring well-being.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Apply Creative Arts Therapy and Action methods to their Group Work.
2. Demonstrate the use of psychodramatic methods to deepen the therapeutic process.

9 ADDICTIONS AND FAMILIES: A SYSTEMS PERSPECTIVE

Jacob Gershoni, LCSW, CGP, TEP

This workshop will examine various roles family members play in maintaining the addict's behavior and stalling or preventing recovery while outwardly attempting to help the addict. Systems theorists view the cycle of addiction as an attempt to self-medicate, which then becomes a problem rather than the solution to the original problem. Factors perpetuating addictions and the destructive impact on the family will be addressed. Psychodrama will be enacted, highlighting its power and effectiveness. This is especially pronounced in countering defense mechanism of denial. Other issues related to shame will be addressed as well, whether in family of origin or families of choice.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Identify General principles of Systems Theory and its application to addiction.
2. Demonstrate psychodramatic interventions and techniques

10 PSYCHODRAMA WITH NON-VOLUNTARY POPULATIONS

Frank Bartolomeo, PhD, LCSW, Silver Hill Hospital, Private practice; Rebecca Walters, MS, LMHC, TEP, Hudson Valley Psychodrama Institute

Group Psychotherapy and Psychodrama are often used with populations like adolescents and adults with substance use disorders. It is common that the role of "patient" or "client" is imposed rather than volitionally taken, because individuals face either legal or other forms of coercion to enter treatment. Moreno's role theory and view of resistance as inadequate warm-up is useful, but not complete. The theory of psychological reactance an important perspective to appreciate the attitudes and behaviors that the group therapy confronts. This workshop will provide participants with a range of psychodramatic and sociodramatic interventions to facilitate the transition from the role of non-voluntary patient/client to active participant in one's treatment.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshops participants will be able to:

1. Explore Moreno's theory of role development.
2. Understand and distinguish the different theoretical perspectives (i.e., role theory, psychodynamic, and psychological reactance of resistance in group therapy and their implications for practice

9:00 AM - 1:00 PM

11 BIBLIODRAMA: MOVING INTO ACTION WITH LITERARY ROLES

Linda Condon, LMHC, TEP

This workshop will explore the literary world using Bibliodrama methodologies. Imagine stepping into a story in the shoes of: a favorite superhero, a Shakespearean villain, a biblical character like Ruth, King David or Jesus. Or perhaps having different story characters share a conversation about what the world needs now. Anything is possible during a Bibliodrama session. Come learn the basics of Bibliodrama and experience how the written word can become a living word.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Differentiate between Bibliodrama, Sociodrama, and Psychodrama
2. Apply various Bibliodramatic warm-ups

12 GREAT WARM-UPS TO ENERGIZE YOUR GROUP WORK

Rhona Case, Licensed Psychologist, TEP

Moreno informs us that our warm-up increases spontaneity and spontaneity increases creativity.

We, as directors, need to be warmed up to be our most creative selves. Our clients need to be warmed up to be open and ready to work on meaningful issues. Join me as we experience several fun and interesting warm-up exercises that you will want to add to your collection. Through sociometric choice protagonists will emerge. We will do as much work as we have time for! Come for a memorable experience!

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Identify sociometric tools to build group cohesiveness and make sociometric selection of protagonist.
2. Demonstrate four warm-up exercises that activate playfulness for advanced spontaneity and readiness to work on issues.

This is a 2024 Award Recipient's Workshop

Participants from all identities will warm up to healthy spontaneity and experience how role conflict invites us to widen our role repertoire and liberate ourselves to unmask authenticity through creating rituals and embodying drag art for collective healing and belonging.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Apply two sociometric interventions that reverse the sociodynamic effect of oppression through ritual and drag art
2. Demonstrate two action methods in empowering and creating liberation with ritual and drag art

This is a 2024 Award Recipient's Workshop

2:00 PM - 6:00 PM

13 UNMASKING AUTHENTICITY: QUEERING PSYCHODRAMA THROUGH DRAG ART AND LIBERATION RITUALS

Kulkiran Nakai, Psy.D., LP; Daisy Martinez Di-Carlo, LPC, LMHC, CP, PAT

Drag is an anti-oppressive art form that's existed throughout human history. Drag has served as a courageous catalyst for our creativity to generate new conserves and change the culture of identity and expression for gender and sexual minorities. In this workshop, psychodrama is applied to drag ritual and liberation movements through Role Theory, Theater of the Oppressed, and the Developmental Model of Liberation.

14 FOLLOWING DREAMS AND STARS IN THE DARK NIGHT OF A TRAUMATIC WORLD

Maurizio Gasseau, Ph.D. Clinical Psychology, IAGP International trainer

Jungian psychodrama is a theory of psychodramatic technique, articulated in a complex model of conduction and observation. It derives from Jung's analytical theory on dreams, from his concepts of the personal and collective unconsciousness, of archetypal images and individuation as well as S.H. Foulkes' concepts of the net and the personal and basic matrix. This experiential group will show a model of Jungian Psychodrama. Dreams convey the transformative wisdom of the unconscious, activating intrapsychic and intersubjective change. The conductor will demonstrate the dream incubation technique. We will play two dreams that enlighten our journey on this planet and memories associated to the dreams.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Distinguish Jungian psychodrama from classic psychodrama
2. Demonstrate how to play and interpret dreams in analytical psychodrama

Anti-Racist Practice in Schools: Sociometric Tools That Foster Democracy in Education

Sociometry empowers student voice, which in turn drives decision-making. Using sociometric tools, we will explore experiences of inclusion and exclusion in school. We will delve into the stories of students of color who have been excluded and how the use of these tools brought them back into the whole school community. We will look at how sociometric, democratic and restorative processes can re-integrate neuro-divergent students, particularly those that are racialized, into the classroom and improve their social and academic success. Finally, we will consider how allies support and challenge us as we seek to decolonize our own practice.

MORNING WORKSHOPS

15 DOUBLING AS DECOLONIZING PRACTICE

Leticia Nieto, Psy.D., LMFT, AAMFT
Approved Supervisor, Playback Theatre
Trainer, TEP; Kulkiran Nakai, Psy.D., LP

Our work as sociometrists and psychodramatists is to address uneven and unhealthy sociometry at all levels of the collective. We demonstrate Doubling as a meta-technique in the context of training spaces. A decolonizing approach invites individual and collective resources from any time, including the time of ancestors, and from any place, including the broad collectives where we find our belonging. We will explore Doubling for inviting deep wisdom that lays latent, only waiting to be evoked.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Identify at least one dimension of decolonizing wisdom that can be accessed through Doubling practice.

2. Describe two ways to bring resources into a drama through Doubling technique.

16 MEN NURTURING MEN: THE POWER OF MALE INTIMACY IN GROUP

Rick Tivers, LCSW, CGP

Process work involves confronting fear of intimacy, merger fears and internalized homophobia. Men will experience their resistance and craving to be held emotionally by other men. Brother and father wounds will also be explored.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Demonstrate process work with men for enhancing intimacy and group development.
2. Recognize defenses that were functional that are barriers to intimacy.

17 CREATING SAFETY AND STRUCTURE IN TREATING COUPLES RECOVERING FROM INTIMATE PARTNER BETRAYAL

Sarah B. Davila, LCSW, PAT; Mario Battista, MSW, CP

The unique hurt and shame that surface for couples where there has been infidelity, sexual acting out/addiction and threats to safe intimacy need tender care. Traditional addiction treatment models don't always reach across this layer of wounding. We will explore the characteristics of partners of sex addicts as well as the stigma and struggle for those dealing with sexually compulsive behaviors and the impact on the partnership. We will describe and demonstrate sociometric and psychodramatic techniques and structures that support safety and increase awareness and accountability and move couples toward the action steps to create greater acceptance and healing.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Recognize the unique struggles of recovery from intimate partner betrayal.
2. Describe two aspects of betrayal trauma and underlying intimacy disorder.

18 River of Life LGBTQ+

Grace Walcott, M.A., AMFT-PRDT; John Olesen, MA, TEP

Creating safe containers allows for honoring vulnerability and the chance to alleviate pain. In this workshop Grace Walcott will shine the light on the healing power of experiential work through the showing of her film "River of Life LGBTQ+". In part, her film explores sociometry as a conduit to unpack queerphobia and celebrate LGBTQ+ evolution. Open to all gender expressions and sexual orientations, together we will look at systemic oppression and our collective strengths and connections.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Apply sociometric interventions to increase a group's connections and functioning.
2. Recognize patterns of internalized oppression.

19 LAPLAYBACK THEATRE COMPANY PERFORMANCE AND/OR WORKSHOP

Participants will learn how creativity can be used to help empower themselves and their clients to promote personal growth.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Demonstrate at least two warm-up exercises to increase sociometry in a group.

2. Describe how to use role training and role reversals to further role development with clients.

21 SAVIOR OR ACCOMPLICE - A SOCIODRAMATIC EXPLORATION OF ALLYSHIP

Cissy Rock, AANZPA, IACD,
Sociodramatist

It is all too easy as a person of privilege to assume that one's own worldview is simply common sense and that the right way of doing things is defined by this. Often ideas, processes, solutions and actions are explored and developed from this perspective. For those of us that work with community development we need to be alert to our own functioning and understand how our role might be experienced. This session is a practical workshop where we will explore a scenario when being an ally is required. Typically these moments are full of tension and fraught with difficulty.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Identify social forces at play and what it takes to sustain us.
2. Recognize what it would take to generate new ways of being and knowing to be effective in such moments.

22 IF YOU WANNA BE HAPPY, BE HAPPY!

Cristina Schmidt, Associate Professor in Bucharest University, Licensed Psychotherapist, Psychodramatist, Sociodramatist, Transgenerational Therapist.

If you want to re-write your life script you need to find The 5 HAPPY ingredients: Harmony, Authenticity, Power, Peace and Yourself. Happiness is often defined by achievements, most of them material ones and the level of satisfaction is not every time fulfilled. In

In this workshop you will find and define the 5 basic components of a sustainable interior construction in order to write a new script of your life. Transform the components in five roles, integrate them using the role training and build a consistent new life story.

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Define the five elements in order to be happy.
2. Select, describe and apply the roles for harmony, authenticity, power, peace and being yourself.

This is a 2024 Award Recipient's Workshop

This proposal introduces "A Voice in the Markets," an innovative initiative addressing limited resources, accessibility issues, and stigma.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Identify the prevalent trends of unhappiness, loneliness, and stress in today's world, particularly among individuals, families and society in General
2. Explain the principles of the Voice in the Markets and its application for social mental health

This is a 2024 Award Recipient's Workshop

3:30 PM - 6:00 PM AFTERNOON WORKSHOPS

25 PSYCHODRAMA IN AN HOUR

Rebecca Walters, LCAT, LMHC, TEP

Most of us have trained in the workshop model, where three hours is not an unusual amount of time for a psychodrama, including warm up, action and sharing. For those who work in agencies, hospitals, clinics, schools and in private practice, the luxury of such prolonged time is not possible. Adaptations of the methods of psychodrama, sociometry and sociodrama have proven effective allowing group members to have a full experience of warm up, action and sharing within a single hour. This workshop offers adaptations that have been developed over the course of 40 years directing in time limited settings.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Describe three short warm ups for a time limited group
2. Demonstrate two ways for rapid sharing

26 MORENO'S MYSTIC WISDOM AND THE UNDERLYING STRUCTURE OF SOCIAL REALITY

Edward Schreiber, TEP, EDM, MSM;
Sarah E. Kelley, drama therapist; Marlo Archer, Ph.D., TEP, ASGPP Fellow

Woven throughout the entire method we find the mystic wisdom of J.L. and Zerka Moreno. Making the mystic wisdom explicit is the focus of this workshop. Through a tool called social microscopy we discover what there is to be seen about society, when the unseen becomes visible to our group. It is a psychodramatic ceremony for the awakening of the autonomous healing center.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Recognize the nature of the underlying structure of social reality.
2. Examine the nature of the autonomous healing center inside us and in the group.

27 INTEGRATION OF ARTMAKING, PSYCHODRAMA & MEDITATION

Ning-Shing Kung, ATR-BC, LPAT, MPS, TEP

Psychodramatic techniques such as role playing and role reversal contribute to the mental growth of the individual. Making art is a non-threatening action to let individuals experience transference symbolically. Meditation is the spiritual practice to expand the individual's internal power. The combination of those three methods build a strong foundation for healing trauma, also can be a self-healing tool for daily stressful life. The workshop includes psychodramatic enactment to demonstrate the development among three methods.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Apply the Loving Kindness and Compassion meditation during directing a psychodrama.
2. Describe the integration between art-making and psychodrama-directing.

28 HEALING THE CHILD'S HURT: OPENING THE ADULT'S HEART TO JOY

Nina Garcia, Ed.D., LCSW, RDT/BCT, TEP, NYU; Dale Buchanan, LICSW, Ph.D., TEP

Unresolved childhood wounds and/or trauma result in pain and suffering in adulthood. Sometimes we feel awful and don't know why. We may blame ourselves or others. We develop core beliefs that don't serve us and that hamper our joy and zest for living. Our nervous system becomes unregulated or dysregulated. This workshop will offer techniques to assist clients in transforming their challenges and mobilizing their strengths.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Define child's hurt
2. Describe the difference between dysregulation and regulation regarding the nervous system.

This is a 2024 Award Recipient's Workshop

29 EMBRACING EMBODIMENT: MOVEMENT EXPLORATIONS IN PSYCHODRAMA

Karen Drucker, Psy.D., TEP

You will meet yourself and others in a container that is deeply nourishing, creative, intelligent, heartbreaking, spirited and transformative. We will use movement and rhythm, music and stillness to connect with ourselves and others. Deepen your contact with your creative expression, be inspired by others, and play with doubling, mirroring and role reversal in novel ways.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Describe three ways to use movement in sociometry.
2. Demonstrate role reversal with aspects of self.

30 SPOTLIGHT SOCIOMETRY: THE POWER OF CONNECTION OVER POLARIZATION

Deborah Shaddy, M.S., LCPC, TEP

Deep divisions based on political and religious identities and specific issues (reproductive rights, gay rights and gun control as examples) impede our ability to see and hear each other. Sociometry provides tools that encourage nuanced views of other positions and the people who hold them. Experience sociometric structures that reduce separation and polarization and identify situations in which structures can be used, providing individuals and communities the opportunity to come together with more spontaneity and creative problem solving.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Describe three sociometric structures that can be used to assist individuals and communities overcome polarization.
2. Differentiate the use of these structures in specific situations

31

BLOOM INTO JOY: CULTIVATE MORE JOY AND LESS "OY!"

Jennie Kristel, REAT, APTT, RMT; Maria Mellano, LICSW, CP

Joy is a challenging state to access in this oftentimes strife-ridden world. Feeling good may feel bad if not used to it. One might experience fear of expressing Joy dampening the polyvagal system. When feeling Joy, we widen the "Circle of Capacity" to embrace the world without being mired in it. Accessing Joy is necessary to expand our social atom. Experiencing positivity boosts the immune system, a sense of well-being to make better decisions and have a "longer view" of the world possible. Through Playback Theatre we will explore ways Joy happens (and disappears) such as our needs, wants and desires and a sense of wellness, to experience guiltless Joy!

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Examine the Polyvagal ladder using psychodramatic and Playback Theatre Methods
2. Demonstrate places of resistance/stuckness to places of Joy.

SOCIOMETRY: THE KEY TO PSYCHODRAMATIC GROUP WORK

Louise Lipman, LCSW-R, CGP, TEP, Psychodrama and Creative Arts
Sociometry opens the door to the creative consciousness of the group. It is the key to revealing the covert and overt networks in the group's structure.

According to Jonathan Moreno:

"Sociometry without Psychodrama is sterile and Psychodrama without Sociometry is blind." Understanding the Sociometry of a group helps to create safety, build connections between group members and identify the transference, tele, open tension systems, act hungers and dramas that are contained in a group. This workshop will deal with the ways in which Sociometry sheds its light on group process and adds to the intensity of the Psychodramatic work.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Demonstrate the integration of Sociometry and Psychodrama in Group Process.
2. Define and illustrate Sociometric tools and techniques.

33

EXPLORING THE "INVISIBLE DIMENSIONS": SURPLUS REALITY APPLICATIONS IN PSYCHODRAMA

Daniela Simmons, Ph.D., TEP; Gülşen Büyükşahin, M.A., CTP-1, TELE'DRAMA International

J.L. Moreno wrote that psychodrama consists not only of recreating experienced events from the past, present and future reality, but also includes experiences "beyond reality." In our lives there are "invisible dimensions," that we haven't been able to completely express or experience, and that is why creating surplus reality is so needed. In Moreno's words, surplus reality is "Bringing magic into science!" This training session will offer didactic and experiential learning of the surplus reality technique and its applications as a central aspect of the psychodrama method.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Describe at least 3 surplus reality applications in psychodrama;

2. Recognize the surplus reality technique as a central concept of the psychodrama method.

34 TOOLS FOR DECOLONIZING SCHOOLS: SOCIOMETRY THROUGH RESTORATIVE PRACTICES

Miriam Zachariah, M.A., TEP

Restorative practices are sociometric tools centred around using circles to develop communities in schools. The intent is to include everyone in decision making and manage conflict in a way that moves from punishment towards the repairing of damaged relationships. In this workshop, we will explore how to empower student voices to drive decision-making and how natural consequences can be used in conjunction with restorative processes to deal with conflict, bullying and and behavior challenges. Through sociometry we will connect to our own experiences of inclusion and exclusion. We will also explore how allies support and challenge us as we seek to decolonize our own practice.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Demonstrate the use of sociometric tools to identify difference and commonalties .
2. Apply circle dialogue for decision making and connection

35 CULTIVATING HOPE: STEPPING INTO THE BEST POSSIBLE FUTURE SELF

Regina Sewell, LMHC, PCC, PhD, CP, PAT; Jennifer Salimbene, MSSW, LCSW-R, CASAC, TEP

Clients often get stuck the past, ruminating on negative experiences and losses and have difficulty believing that they have the ability to make their future better. As a result, they feel powerless and unmotivated to make positive changes. Positive Psychology provides evidence-based tools to help clients shift perspectives and change their behavior. Psychodramatic enactment enhances the power of these tools by giving participants an opportunity to experience embodied cognition (a way of changing our thinking through action). In this workshop, we will demonstrate how to use the Best Possible Future Self in action to help clients shift from hopelessness to hopefulness.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Explain how psychodrama can be used to facilitate change through its impact on embodied cognition.
2. Describe how to enact the Best Possible Future Self

36 TRAUMA-INFORMED PSYCHODRAMA: PRINCIPLES FOR ETHICAL AND CLINICAL PRACTICE

Scott Giacomucci, DSW, LCSW, CGP, TEP; Lewis Johnson, M.S., CTP, CET I

This workshop presents the six trauma-informed principles outlined by SAMHSA and their utility in sociometry, psychodrama, and group therapy. Trauma-informed principles will be approached as clinical and ethical guidelines. Risks of retraumatization in psychodrama will be addressed. Participants will be challenged to critically reflect on their relationships to these principles and explore ways of further integrating them into practice. Multiple experiential sociometry processes will be demonstrated, followed by a strengths-based psychodrama.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Identify SAMHSA's trauma-informed principles.
2. Describe two strategies for preventing retraumatization in psychodrama.

This is a 2024 Award Recipient's Workshop

37 BIBLIODRAMA: ENLIVENING OUR TEXTS AND MAKING SCRIPTURE OUR OWN

Shelley Firestone, M.D., F-AGPA, CGP, PAT

Using a story from the Torah, we will step into the roles of biblical figures, offering our contemporary voices as the story unfolds, enlivening the text and adding our personal meanings. As we look within the story for the wisdom of the ages, we find our own stories as personal and universal truths emerge. The experience provides an opportunity to use our imagination and improvisation to discover relevancy from the scriptures for today's world, enriching the stories and making them our own. With our similar and different voices, we will come to recognize our personal and spiritual journey in ancient texts.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Explain the history, theory and practice of Bibliodrama.
2. Demonstrate the use of role playing to bring stories to life, making them relevant and personal.

Integrating Brené Brown's The Daring Way™ with action methods and psychodrama, participants will identify their own values, supports that protect those values, and challenges that get in the way. 40 JOURNEY TO OZ: CELEBRATING OUR DREAMS

Stephen Kopp, M.S., TEP

Let's journey somewhere over the rainbow where dreams really do come true. A rainbow is simply white light freed by rain into a spectrum. Often clients feel inhibited or trapped and dream small. Let's accept Moreno's challenge to give people the courage to dream again. Using metaphors from OZ, we will identify how psychodrama helps clients identify obstacles to changing and growing. Psychodrama can provide a yellow brick road towards identify resources that awakens their dreams.

Learning Objectives:

Robin McCoy Brooks, LMHC, TEP, Jungian Analyst; Lusijah Marx, R.N., Psy.D.; John Olesen, TEP; Graham Harriman

Seven years ago we started to write a book about our experiences participating in the formation of an AIDS clinic named Project Quest in the early days of AIDS. Each of us has psychodrama and depth psychology in common, and we draw on what we learned then that has relevance in today's crisis ridden world. Our book "The Healing Power of Community: Mutual Aid, AIDS and Social Change in Psychology" (2024) will guide our presentation and action session.

AFTERNOON WORKSHOPS

43 COUNTERTRANSFERENCE: WHAT WE LEARN FROM OUR CLIENTS ABOUT OURSELVES

Jacob Gershoni, LCSW, CGP, TEP

Working as counselors or therapists has many demands and rewards. Some clients evoke strong feelings in us, and other pose challenges leaving us wanting for more knowledge. This workshop will focus on our own reactions to clients, especially when we feel puzzled, overwhelmed, doubting ourselves and our abilities. Some of these issues are referred to as counter-transference and need to be addressed in our quest to improve our skills. Beyond that, such explorations invariably lead to an expansion of our own self-awareness. For many of us, this is one of the underlying motivations—conscious or not—to do this work.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Recognize countertransference issues.
2. Examine roadblocks to effective work with clients.

44 SHINING A LIGHT ON THE INTERNAL DRAMA TRIANGLE

Linda Condon, LMHC, TEP

This workshop will look at the Karpman Drama Triangle roles (Victim, Rescuer, Persecutor) and identify how they operate on an intrapersonal level. We will explore how early role training influences the way these internal roles are played; keeping us trapped in compulsive activity, shaming or putting ourselves down endlessly, and ultimately leading us to sabotage ourselves. Using action methodologies, participants will explore strategies that activate the Circle of Restoration resource roles and provide us with opportunities to re-role train ourselves to healthier roles of connection, action, and expression.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Explain internal drama triangle role behaviors and Circle of Restoration role behaviors.
2. Apply action strategies to role train Circle of Restoration resource roles.

45 THE ART AND SOUL OF HUMAN CONNECTION

Jacqueline Siroka, LCSW, BCD, TEP

Most humans long for human connection but build barriers against it. Wounding happens in connection and we build defenses to keep protecting ourselves from re experiencing the hurt. Sociometry guides group members to address issues that prevent them from making meaningful connections. Rumi “your task is not to seek love, but merely to seek and find barriers that you have built against it” We will utilize sociometry and action methods to explore our interpersonal world

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Describe how Sociometry is the underpinning for Psychodrama
2. Explain the relationships that are tele based and the relationships that are role based

46 THE NURTURING PARENT AND INNER WOUNDED CHILD DIALOGUE FOR TRAUMA HEALING

Sylvia Israel, LMFT, RDT/BCT, TEP

"We have within us our own firstborn child. Our job is to re-parent that child."

--Dorothy Satten, Ph.D., TEP

A reparative dialogue between a nurturing parent and an inner wounded child is often an important scene in trauma repair. Integrating psychodrama with music and movement, we will learn how to direct a parent-child dialogue. Questions addressed include: How do we help the protagonist remain in their window of tolerance and access spontaneity? Is reparenting possible if the protagonist is regressed? What are the key messages the wounded child needs to hear? How can the auxiliary support the dialogue? Join us and practice reparenting yourself and your individual and group clients.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Describe the steps in facilitating a nurturing parent - inner child psychodramatic dialogue.
2. Explain the importance of the protagonist remaining in their window of tolerance when in the nurturing parent role.

47 I SEE YOUOR DO I ?

We are living in a time of repair. coming out of covid, disasters and divisions. This workshop will help participants to connect with and to see the other more clearly. Using psychodrama, sociometry and group process we will learn to hear, see and value each others differences as we witness each other with open hearts and new understandings.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Demonstrate a clear role reversal.
2. Apply doubling to help with clearer communication.

48 ENHANCING OUR ABILITY TO USE SOCIOMETRIC TECHNIQUES

Nan Nally-Seif, LCSW, DCSW, TEP

Bringing sociometry to the forefront. We will experience how sociometry warms up a group. We will look at the breath of sociometry and how it is present in the warm up, the action and sharing of a psychodrama. We will focus on hands on sociometry, pen and paper sociometry, and sociograms. Attention will be given to formulating relevant criteria questions for each of these techniques. We will use this sociometric exploration to warm up our spontaneity and creativity to go into action and create a psychodrama.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Define, demonstrate and practice three sociometric techniques: hands on sociometry, pen and paper sociometry, and sociograms.
2. Recognize and describe the importance of formulating a relevant criteria question for each of these three sociometric techniques.

49 WAYS IN: PLAYBACK THEATRE AND SOCIODRAMA

Judy Swallow, LCAT, CRS, TEP

Playback Theatre and sociodrama are ways in which someone can experience a safe distance from their story. Sociodrama helps the person explore the structure of a situation without overtly identifying their personal involvement. If the person chooses to, their sharing could evolve into a psychodrama, or the sociodrama could simply stand on its own. Playback Theatre allows the teller to observe his, her or their story acted out by group members (or a professional group) and then to decide whether to enter the situation, which can often create a redressive psychodramatic healing experience. This workshop will allow members to explore both modalities and discover how to use them as warmups to psychodramatic action.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Distinguish between sociodrama and psychodrama.
2. Recognize the Playback Theatre method.

50 TRANSGENERATIONAL JUNGIAN PSYCHODRAMA

Maurizio Gasseau, Phd Clinical Psychology, University Professor

The objective of Transgenerational Psychodrama is to loosen the bonds of loyalty and invisible scripts inherited from previous generations, making them explicit and releasing the psychic energy they encysted. Participants will be accompanied on the streets of the Ancestors in a frame with warming up on transgenerational and exploration of dreams and active imagination in the encounter with Ancestors, through the Jungian psychodrama. It derives from Jung’s analytical theory on dreams, from his concepts of the personal and collective unconsciousness, of archetypal images and individuation. After the final sharing, there will be a narrative observation that will communicate the sense of representations, and the dreams which have been played.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Identify the transgenerational bonds of participants of the workshop.

2. Demonstrate the work of jungian psychodrama on collective unconsciousness and transgenerational topic

PSYCHODRAMA

ROLE PLAY TECHNIQUES

- ### 1 DOUBLING

In classical psychodrama, the protagonist is joined by an auxiliary, either a co-director or group member, who speaks as the protagonist's inner voice. The double is a basic technique in psychodrama.

- ### 2 MIRRORING

The protagonist stands out of the scene and watches while his, her or their role is played or replayed by an auxiliary.

- ### 3 ROLE REVERSAL

The major participants in the drama change roles as part the enactment. When a protagonist role reverses, he, she or they not only demonstrates how the "other" behaves in the scene – but also transcends habitual limitations of egocentricity. Role reversal is indicated when it is appropriate for the protagonist to empathize with the other's viewpoint.

- ### 4 ASIDE

The protagonist breaks away from the events of the dramatic story to quickly talk to themselves or directly to the group.

- ### 5 SOLILOQUY

The protagonist shares aloud feelings and thoughts normally kept hidden. The protagonist may be engaged in a solitary activity, such as walking home, winding down after an eventful day, or preparing for an event in the near future.

Haydn Briggs, LCSW, CGP, CET II

Join us for an engaging workshop exploring the parallels and distinctions between Internal Family Systems (IFS) and psychodrama. We will delve into the fundamentals of each therapeutic approach, uncover their shared theoretical foundations and show how practical application of IFS augments intrapsychic and interpersonal psychodramatic work and we can find more spontaneity and creativity in our director roles.

1. Describe one way that IFS can be applied to psychodrama.
2. Identify one similarity between Self, the Godhead, and the Autonomous Healing Center.

51 PSYCHOTHERAPEUTIC PLAYBACK THEATRE AS GROUP ANALYTIC DRAMA THERAPY

Ronen Kowalsky, M.A. Supervising Clinical Psychologist, Group Analyst;
Shoshi Keisari, Ph.D., Drama therapist

Psychotherapeutic Playback Theatre is an evolving form of drama therapy based on group analytic principles. In our unique development of Psychotherapeutic Playback Theatre group members switch between "playing the other," observing the situation from his, her or their perspective, and "allowing the other to play me," looking at multiple self-states using the perspective of the other. A group language of theatrical images is created through this process. This provides the group with continuous practice in empathy, strengthens cohesion, and confronts processes of alienation, and exclusion.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Examine and Apply group processes in Psychotherapeutic Playback Theatre.
2. Apply processes of structuring and non-structuring in Psychotherapeutic Playback Theatre.

55 ACTING OUT LONELINESS-EMPOWERING THROUGH SOCIODRAMA

Daniela Damian, Psychodrama, Family therapy, Transactional Analysis, Psychogenealogy

Shining a light on how belonging, using Sociodrama people can ward off loneliness. Moreno's role theory indicate the importance of social interaction and group dynamics in shaping individual life behavior and identity. Active engagement with roles allows individuals to shape their identity and to establish a sense of purpose and belonging.

Loneliness anxiety, is not true loneliness but the fear people have of being lonely, is the fear which they desperately try to escape from. Transforming aloneness and loneliness, through Sociodrama, may empower people to reach to others to connect, opening the possibility of the experience being welcomed by others. During this workshop, a full sociodrama will be directed.

56 AUTOIMMUNE CONDITIONS: LOSS OF FEMININITY AND UNFREEZING THROUGH PSYCHODRAMATIC ENCOUNTER

Mirjana Stanković, M.A., Certified Tele'Drama Practitioner (CTP-Level 2)

Autoimmune response happens when a spiritual, spontaneous creative being is overexposed to the "second universe" rules. Suppression of creativity is a death-threat which directs its host to 'freeze', leading to a disbalance of feminine and masculine principles. The somatic experience is that of immobilization of vital functions. The emotional state includes guilt, shame and depression. Dissociation and mental exhaustion command self-destruction and disability to be here and now. Is it possible to regain spontaneity by "throwing away the script" and encounter "the first universe" through psychodrama? If the "autonomous healing center" thrives on the first universe, can psychodrama reactivate it to alleviate or heal autoimmune disorders in a reversed process?

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Recognize a possible causal relationship of autoimmune conditions with suppression and a loss of creativity and spontaneity.
2. Examine an encounter with the first universe and reactivation of the autonomous healing centre through psychodrama.

57 ACTIVATING PSYCHODRAMATIC AUTONOMOUS HEALING CENTER WITH MOTIVATION SCIENCE

Ozge Kantas, Ph.D., CP/PAT

"There is nothing more practical than a good theory!" said Kurt Lewin. Therefore, utilizing the modern research and intervention tools of psychology, and specifically applied motivation science, we will deep dive to Self-Determination Theory to learn how to activate Autonomous Healing Center in psychodrama.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Define the basic psychological needs universal to human experience for effective autonomous functioning of clients, meanwhile identifying and analyzing person- or group-specific ways of satisfying those needs in a diverse and inclusive approach.
2. Differentiate human-centered intervention design, creating motivational conditions and supportive settings with sociometry and playfulness to match therapy, consulting, and business goals.

Angela Grayson, President of the American Dance Therapy Association, Ph.D., LPC, BC-DMT, NCC

Movement is our first language and means of communication. While in the womb we grew and moved according to internal and external stimuli. Consequently, our bodies innately engage in movement as a protective or reflexive response, and we are in constant vibration with our internal organs which make up our unique rhythmic patterns. Music causes ripples in the vibration of our unique rhythmic patterns and is the fastest way to shift our internal vibration, serving as a catalyst jolting us from one emotional state to another. When a trauma response is activated, movement and music can change our vibration to a different frequency.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Examine the benefits of regulating our internal and external stimuli to help with cognitive restructuring.
2. Demonstrate the effects of incorporating a theme song to foster healing emotionally, mentally, spiritually and physically

Magdalene Jeyarathnam, MSW, PhD ABD, Psychodrama Trainer & Supervisor

This session delves into sociometric techniques to enhance understanding and support among this vulnerable group. Participants will learn strategies for positive social interactions and resilience in these children and focus on creating safe, empathetic environments to facilitate emotional expression and peer connections for their psychological well-being and social development.

1. Differentiate Sociometric Techniques: Participants will be able to differentiate between key sociometric techniques and select appropriate ones for assessing the social dynamics of HIV-infected and affected children.

2. Apply Sociometry in Practice: Attendees will demonstrate the ability to apply sociometric methods in real-life scenarios, effectively enhancing the social engagement and support for children impacted by HIV.

65 EXPLORING AGING AND AGISM IN AN AGE-PHOBIC CULTURE

Elizabeth Plummer, Ph.D., LCP, TEP

Growing older in a culture that values youth, beauty, independence, and productivity can be a painful passage. Agism has colonized our individual and collective psyches. Can we deny or erase time's changes to our faces, bodies and minds indefinitely? Can we create space for purpose, freedom and creativity in late life without banishing the specters of decline, loss and endings? This workshop will use sociometry and psychodrama to help participants make peace with their inner agists and explore aging as an evolutionary journey. We will look thoughtfully at what a more conscious and welcoming approach to aging might entail and what gifts that approach it might bring.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Recognize and describe agism in modern society and as an internalized phenomenon.

66 SAFETY IS THE TREATMENT

John Olesen, MA, TEP; Kate Cook, MA, LPCC, TEP

This title, from pioneer relational neuroscientist Stephen Porges, is more relevant than ever. It offers a foundation for our evolving understanding of how and why we expand the practice and theory of psychodrama in these post-covid times. These methods can offer desperately needed revival of action-oriented survival skills. We will embark on a journey of exploring warm-up, cultivating the felt sense of safety-in-connection, and the neurobiological roots of social engagement, co/regulation and connection/isolation. Safety is prerequisite to creativity, spontaneity and play.

Learning Objectives:

After attending this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Apply concepts of Neurobiology to their practice and action methods.
2. Identify the "felt sense" of safety in themselves and recognize it in others.

Exploring Sociometry, Psychodrama & Action Methods in Clinical Practice
Saturday & Sunday, April 13, 14, 9 am- 5:30 pm

The underpinning of the therapeutic relationship is connection. Sociometry – the exploration of choices that connect or disconnect is the undercurrent and guide we utilize to move clients toward growth and change. Psychodrama is the clinical intervention to gain insight, explore affect and cognitions and role train new behaviors.

San Diego Open Sessions

Mirror, Mirror, on the Wall: The Mirror Technique in Psychodrama
Saturday & Sunday, May 4-5, 9 am- 5:30 pm

An individual's sense of self is primarily formed as a result of their perceptions of how others perceive them. The Mirroring Technique allows a client to see themselves as others see them. In our lives, this process either reflects an accurate, compassionate mirror, or becomes complicated when the mirror provided creates a distortion in the person's self-perception. Learn how to distinguish between accurate and distorted mirroring and how to repair the cracked mirrors of clients through working in Psychodrama with those responsible for their distortions.

Exploring the Roles We Play: Role Theory in Psychodrama
Saturday Sunday, September 21 & 22, 9 am- 5:30 pm

JL Moreno was one of the earliest clinicians to recognize the multifaceted nature of human beings. Moreno developed his role theory from his belief that we become who we are through the roles we play over the course of our lives. Moreno stated, "roles do not emerge from the self but that the self emerges from roles." In this workshop we will explore Moreno's concept that, even before conception, through birth and into life, we hold variety of roles. From the roles we are given, and later choose to take, we begin to learn who we are. As such our sense of self changes and evolves with our experiences. Working explicitly in this way we can support our clients to expand their role repertoires; Enabling them to let go of unhelpful, outdated, and overdeveloped roles and begin to identify and step into new empowering and fulfilling roles in life. Come explore Action Methods and their use in moving clients forward in their therapeutic process.

Why is experiential psychotherapy training important?

Talk therapy can keep us stuck, linking us to the belief that we understand our problems while nothing changes. Experiential therapy explores the many dimensions of being human and promises to go deep into healing, change and transformation.

Experiential therapy is holistic.

- 1 We learn how to identify and select the best action structures for the person's particular clinical needs, stage of treatment, emotional capacity of regulation and treatment and personal goals.
- 2 We learn the framework to conduct all experiential work with safety and sensitivity, keeping our work fully trauma informed, and how to avoid any conscious re-traumatization of our people.
- 3 We learn pacing and multiple ways to bring genuine engagement and aliveness to our individual, couple, family and group sessions as a psychotherapist, counselor, LMFT, psychiatrist, nurse practitioner or other helper.

WHAT IS PSYCHODRAMA?

WHAT IS Psychodrama?

Psychodrama is an experiential method used in a variety of settings not limited to: therapeutic, educational, theatrical, and social change.

Founded by Jacob L. Moreno (1889-1974), and further developed by his wife, Zerka T. Moreno (1917-2016).

The Stage

A space reserved for working. Where the drama takes place.

Elements

Auxiliaries

Group members chosen by the protagonist to play significant people in their drama.

Protagonist

Person whose story unfolds onstage.

Audience/Group

Witnesses to the drama.

Director

Follows protagonist, offering choices for co-creation of the drama.

The Process

1.

Warm-up

Includes checking in; getting to know group; becoming comfortable with movement; easing into spontaneity.

2.

Action

A group member's story is explored through dramatization and role-playing.

3.

Sharing

Participants "de-role" and process with the group how the action related to their lives.

A Few Techniques

Role-Reversal

The protagonist trades places with an auxiliary, responding from their perspective.

Doubling

The group, director, or protagonist voices thoughts or feelings that have been unspoken in a role.

Soliloquy

The protagonist voices their internal monologue, allowing the group to hear.

This infographic was created by Courtney Meadows, LMSW, RDT.

WHAT IS SOCIOMETRY?

WHAT IS Sociometry?

Created by psychiatrist Jacob L. Moreno (1889–1974), sociometry explores relationships within groups.

Its tools can create safety, identify common concerns, increase group connection, and more.

Participants choose from three or more options by moving to their location of choice.

Step-in Circle

"Step in if you are the oldest child in your family."

By stepping in to the center of the circle, group members learn what they share in common.

Participants choose from only two options, a "forced choice", moving to that space.

Placing themselves on a spectrum, participants share where they fit within a range.

A sociogram is a visual map of relationships within a group – on paper or in action.
